

From: Aniket, Kumar k.aniket@ucl.ac.uk
Subject:
Date: 16 October 2017 at 08:26
To: Mao, Xuxin xuxin.mao@ucl.ac.uk

Look Xuxin, it is very clear, you did not give me a say in designing the course. You made the syllabus without consulting me without involving me. When I raised issues, you made no changes. I have 15 years of teaching experience but you refuse to entertain even a single suggestion from me. You have basically treated me like a teaching assistant. That is not going to work. I am a Research Fellow and teaching is not my job. I am happy to teach but trying to work out things with you is taking too much time and I can't afford that. You seem to be stuck in your position and not ready to accommodate. I am happy to teach but only when I am given a say in the course. If you are going to tell me every week what I should be doing, then that is unacceptable to me.

If you are ready to be professional in your conduct with me and respect my professional expertise, then I am happy to be friendly. But, I am sorry, if you are not going to give me a say in the course, then that is unacceptable to me. So, it is entirely up to you how our future relationship goes.

Best wishes,
Aniket